

INSIDE TRACK

By GAYLE FEE and
LAURA RAPOSA

With ERIN HAYES

BOSTON Herald

www.bostonherald.com

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 2007 • 50 CENTS (75 CENTS 30 MILES OUTSIDE BOSTON)

STAFF PHOTO BY NANCY LANE

SWEET TREAT: Kevin Youkilis is a hit with 4-year-olds Liberty Meisl and Cameron Langley at Massachusetts General Hospital yesterday.

Youk treats kids with cancer to a spooky good time

Boo! It's Yooouk!

A dozen or so giggling costumed kids from Massachusetts General Hospital's cancer unit got the treat of their lives yesterday, collecting Halloween goodies with Red Sox first baseman Kevin Youkilis.

Youkilis was scaring up the fun as the grand marshal for MGH's Christopher's Haven Halloween parade.

"It made Halloween special for the kids," said MGH spokeswoman Valerie Wencis. "Some of the boys went as the Sox players, while the girls dressed up as Snow White and fairies. There was a lot of energy, and the kids just loved it."

Christopher's Haven, a home away from home for pediatric cancer patients and their families, marked its first anniversary last month.